

Company Decides Who to Hire for an Internship

The company sees a list of applicants and their questionnaire results. The list is sorted by the evaluation of the questionnaire. A filter is available to limit the list up to a certain number of applicants.

The company sees an overview of the applicant's profile and the answers to the questionnaire. The company can now decide who to hire after an interview.

The company has hired the applicant and the internship is now closed. The status of the internship is updated to "ongoing".